CARE CORNER

Welcome back to our newsletter! In this edition, we're continuing the conversation; sharing updates and insights. Thank you for being part of our community as we work together to make care feel more connected and empowering.

COORDINATOR UPDATES

Brianna has recently expanded her skills by completing her Certificate IV in Human Resource Management. This new knowledge further strengthens her capability as a Home Care Coordinator, especially in supporting staff, managing recruitment and maintaining strong workplace practices. Well done, Brianna!

REAL PEOPLE, REAL PROGRESS

One of our participants has recently decreased the number of services we provide to her. Through our education and reablement program, she has gained the confidence to self-administer her insulin independently. This is a huge achievement and a reflection of her hard work and commitment to managing her own health. We're so proud to see her growing in confidence and taking greater control of her independence.

GADGETS AND GIZMOS

Ever wondered how prosthetic limbs work? This month we delved into how these brain-controlled limbs work. Neural implants capture the brain's electrical signals for movement, advanced algorithms decode this "neural chatter" into commands and prosthetic actuators use those commands to move, creating artificial limbs that respond directly to thought. How cool!

PRIVATE HOMECARE

For many older Australians or people needing support at home, government-funded programs like NDIS or home care packages can be a great help. But not everyone is eligible for these programs, and waiting lists can delay access to much needed support. In these situations, private in-home care offers a flexible alternative that puts you in control of your care.

Unlike funded plans, there are no eligibility requirements for private care. Adults of any age can access it, whether you're recovering from surgery, living with a chronic condition, or simply need extra help around the house.

Private in-home care providers can tailor support to you. Common services include:

- Personal care: Help with showering, dressing, mobility, and daily routines.
- Domestic support: Housekeeping, laundry, meal prep, and shopping.
- Clinical or nursing care: Medication assistance, wound care, and rehabilitation support.
- Companionship: Social support, outings, and emotional well-being activities.
- Transport services: Helping you attend appointments and stay engaged in the community.

Because private care isn't tied to a strict care plan or funding rules, you can work with your provider to build a support plan that matches your lifestyle and goals.

CATASTROPHIC INJURY SUPPORT

SNS Homecare is a registered provider of catastrophic injury support in Western Australia.

People who have received a serious personal injury as a result of a motor vehicle accident in WA, or a workplace accident, may be eligible to receive support from the catastrophic injuries support scheme.

The catastrophic injuries support scheme eligibility is administered by the Insurance Commission of Western Australia.

SNS Homecare Coordinator Brianna O'Connor said "The team at SNS Homecare is here to help people and families needing intense and complex care resulting from a catastrophic injury.

CURRENT CAPACITY

SNS currently has the capacity to take on new participants requiring daily assistance, nursing care and/or community inclusion support.

STAFF HIGHLIGHT

Meet Tshering! One of our amazing support workers.

Tshering has been with us for just over six months and has already made a positive impact on the lives of our participants. She consistently demonstrates professionalism, compassion and a calm approach, particularly in challenging situations. We're grateful for her dedication and the care she brings to her role.
